

How did Coventry recover after the war?

The following is an extract from a personal account of what it was like as a child to grow up in Coventry after the war.

Toddling with my parents around the City Centre; a chaos of post war Coventry scaffolding, construction and clearances. Seeing the opening of the Woolworth building, the other end was True Form, buying a mega silk-screened tie there, for Sunday best, mum thinking it too big and flash, but it was smart, nothing packaged like today. Gaunt cranes and towering buildings, ever changing, with every Saturday visit. Seeing British Home Store and Marks and Sparks emerge. A brand-new city Centre taking shape as I slowly grew, and the Phoenix rose from the ashes of war.

Trevor

Being taken into Timothy Whites, the half-timbered hardware store in Trinity Street. Walking around the back by the old market, fish smells, meat market, haberdashery, 2nd hand books, slow crowds hovering around stalls, tall folks, adults, long 50's overcoats and hats, grey and sober, the sound of market mongers flogging their wares - theirs was always best, always an angle, through the quiet parts of the market, finding an exit, clear air, all in a temporary flux of giant change, the smell of something emerging, just like me, growing up, a new city for a new age, the 60's, full of hope, looking to peace and love and creativity, hope for mankind.

In pairs, read through the extract and gather your thoughts on the following.

What picture does the account paint in your head?

What was happening in Coventry after the war?

How do people seem to feel?

What does the term 'Phoenix rose from the ashes of war' mean?

Teacher's Pet

Historic England

Coventry

How did Coventry recover after the war?

What picture does the account paint in your head?

What was happening in Coventry after the war?

How do people seem to feel?

What does the term 'Phoenix rose from the ashes of war' mean?

Teacher's Pet

Historic England

? How did Coventry recover after the war?

The following is an extract from a personal account of what it was like as a child to grow up in Coventry after the war.

Toddling with my parents around the City Centre; a chaos of post war Coventry scaffolding, construction and clearances. Seeing the opening of the Woolworth building, the other end was True Form, buying a mega silk-screened tie there, for Sunday best, mum thinking it too big and flash, but it was smart, nothing packaged like today. Gaunt cranes and towering buildings, ever changing, with every Saturday visit. Seeing British Home Store and Marks and Sparks emerge. A brand-new city Centre taking shape as I slowly grew, and the Phoenix rose from the ashes of war.

Being taken into Timothy Whites, the half-timbered hardware store in Trinity Street. Walking around the back by the old market, fish smells, meat market, haberdashery, 2nd hand books, slow crowds hovering around stalls, tall folks, adults, long 50's overcoats and hats, grey and sober, the sound of market mongers flogging their wares - theirs was always best, always an angle, through the quiet parts of the market, finding an exit, clear air, all in a temporary flux of giant change, the smell of something emerging, just like me, growing up, a new city for a new age, the 60's, full of hope, looking to peace and love and creativity, hope for mankind.

In pairs, read through the extract and gather your thoughts on the following.

What picture does the account paint in your head?

What was happening in Coventry after the war?

How do people seem to feel?

What does the term 'Phoenix rose from the ashes of war' mean?

? How did Coventry recover after the war?

What picture does the account paint in your head?

What was happening in Coventry after the war?

How do people seem to feel?

What does the term 'Phoenix rose from the ashes of war' mean?

Local History

Historic England and Teacher's Pet have come together to bring you a collection of free resources that you can use in your local history teaching.

Historic England

Teacher's Pet

Who are Teacher's Pet?

Teacher's Pet have been providing downloadable and playable educational content to early years and primary school teachers for over 14 years. We cover all areas of the curriculum and use a team of in-house teachers and designers to create engaging and memorable concepts, that the children will love.

Why local history?

At Teacher's Pet we want to empower primary school teachers by giving them the tools they need to deliver inspiring and thoughtful lessons about the local area and its history. We believe local history teaching has such an important part to play in a child's wellbeing – helping to give children a sense of pride in where they live.

Our Local History project is designed to provide teachers across the UK with everything they need to successfully carry out a full scheme of teaching about their local area, through key enquiry questions and source led activities.

Working with Historic England gives us access to archived maps and photos for resources and information from knowledgeable local historians, as well helping us to provide the content to you free of charge.

For more information about our Local History project or to find out more about Teacher's Pet Classroom Resources, please visit our website.